Old Mr. Plutocracy is to be congratulated on his character. As usual just as he is worrying about the Socialist party, that did not want him to be happy, that party breaks in two. Its most energetic members head their announcement farewell to the Socialist party, and are off of a considerable undertaking—the establishment of a Soviet government, on the Russian plan, in this fair land. There won't be any Soviet government here, so that does not count. But there probably won't be many, if any, Socialists elected to office, and that does count for old Plutocracy's comfort.

In 1924 this world will make a desperate effort to talk to its smaller, much older sister planet Mars. Imagine an older sister trying to talk to her big baby sister, the latter too young to understand or pronounce clearly, and you see the situation.

You have tried a hundred times to make a young baby understand and answer. Marconi says Mars is trying to make us understand now that he has noticed the wireless attempts.

It is certain that within a time not far distant, as time goes on, other planets sufficiently developed in our solar family will talk to us. Mars, millions of years older than ourselves and nearest to us, will be first, presumably, to teach us, as older sisters teach the younger. Once in fifteen years Mars comes very near to us.

The distance in 1924 will be only thirty-five million miles.

At first, we shall simply know that Mars is trying to make us understand, as when you snap your finger at a baby, and giggle. The language they use on Mars is inconceivably different from our own. In the millions of years they may have dropped language and learned to communicate thought direct. That would make it harder.

But they probably could talk our baby talk to us. They will teach us first, probably, to harness nature's forces, as we teach babies to walk, first of all.

Imagine how slowly a baby would learn. If all through life it had to work everything out for itself, unable to ask questions, to imagine how rapidly we shall advance to tell us all it knows, and perhaps threaten us with electric bombardment, painful but not fatal, if we persist in going to war, or opposing the poor, after being told that it is wrong.

It is perfectly natural, in our minds, for a parent to say if you sleep each other, mother will whip you. Just as natural for old Mars to say to young Earth, "I have told you what is wrong. If you persist in it, I'll punish you all alike."

This writer will ask K. G. Walsh, whose imagination equals the tale to rewrite his War of the Worlds, products of his mental faculty, and tell what Mars might do for us. He wants what is impossible among us undisciplined savages—a world's wisdom. He might get, in time, a good government to bring us up in the right way.

Chester, great French cook, whose Frank Munster, the Englishman, knew nothing about eating, would want bacon, ham, and other articles; sometimes fine herbs and old French complaint. Voltaire said England had only one religion, and many religions. He preferred France with many laws and only one religion.

Union Ct., Sept. 19.—Search for the mysteriously missing Mrs. Norah Johnson Kettelle has been removed from the vicinity of Lake Mashapaug, where her husband, John D. Kettelle, believes his wife was drowned, and has been widened to include many of the nearby towns and villages.

Chauncey Dewey tells this little story: His first $100 he put in the Peabody Savings Bank. It was in a day or a hundred years if it was up and found that $100 had grown to $800, at 5 per cent, a low rate of interest. He is going to leave it there, "out of sentiment."

What could be more beautiful than sentiment? You ask, and pass on to this question: How rich will one of the richest families in America be in a day or a hundred years if it keeps some modest amount, say $250,000,000, doubling its value every day during that time at the modern fabulous 7 per cent. interest rate?

Questioned as to the report that they intended sending for Kettelle in an effort to clear up the case, Captain Hawley said today that, so far as he knew, this was not true and would not be done. None of the officers involved in the search for Mrs. Kettelle, however, would admit this today.

At this moment, government has rearranged the income tax, as the New York Times truly says, to give great relief to men with big incomes and comparatively little relief to little income holders. Some day, when the billion dollar fortune becomes the ten billion dollar fortune, government may feel that the big fortune is strong enough to carry its share of the load.

It is enlightening to read, in Senator Francis's careful description of Leon Trotsky, that he is of the type known to the anthropologists as the tall blonde type of man, without suggestion of the dark Oriental type. His eyes are blue, etc. As head of the Russian army, he ranks among the great leaders of history, and as with practically all of the world's 3,000 first men, you find him with blue eyes.

Even among dark eyed people, as with Napoleon and Caesar, the Italian race, Trotsky and Spillane of the dark-eyed Jewish race, you find the real leaders blue-eyed. Can you explain that? And which of the world's greatest men can you mention, except perhaps Benvenuto, that had not blue or gray eyes?
